RESPONSE TO NOTICE OF NON-COMPLIANCE

The Notice of Non-compliant amendment dated April 6, 2005 is defective. It simply advises that deletions to the specification are to be indicated by strike-throughs or, for five or less characters, brackets, and that additions are to be underlined. Applicant is aware of the rules, and has followed them.

The Notice fails to explain where, precisely, in the amendment the allegedly defective markings occur. A review of the amendment reveals that additions to the specification have been underlined and deletions have been bracketed for five or fewer characters or struck through for more. The replacement sections have been clearly identified. A general complaint of non-compliance without specifying where, exactly, the non-compliance was, particularly when, as here, the complaint seems to be baseless, is not helpful.

Respectfully submitted,
